Cases for NoSQL

1. Content Management System (CMS). Usually a CMS lets users create their own database models which means developers don't know the database schema beforehand as each user can create their own models. So a NoSQL database here would be preferred.
2. Streaming Service. The type of content to be streamed is not the same and the stream could be a video or an audio.
3. Io'T. Iot devices vary in their functionality and the type of data they collect.
